FREW & CAMPBELL PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

THURSDAY, DEC. 28, 1675.

sent us a copy of a circular issued by J. D. Pickett to the people of Brooke county on the 31st of January, 1861, after his nomination as the candidate of the Bourbon or Breckenridge wing of the Democ racy to represent that county in the Richmond Secession Convention. The Professor was at that time a member of the faculty at Bethany College, and being a Kentuckian by birth and deeply dyed in the pro-slavery faith, he was anxious to go to Richmond and rescue the fair fame of Brooke county from the tarnish of Abolitionism, with which it had become soiled by reason of the vote cast in the county for Abraham Lincoln at the Presidential election in the fall preceding. In this circular he appealed to his "Breckenridge, Bell and Everett and Douglas friends to come gallantly to the rescue, and redeem old Brooke from the foul aspersion cast upon her at home and abroad of being Republicanized and Ab-

But the chivalric professor's appeal was unheeded by Brooke county. Instead of electing him to the Convention she chose an unconditional Union man, and left the professor to stay at home and pack his trunk for an early departure south to join in the war of the rebellion We presume that in the fifteen years that have elapsed since the issue of his circular he has had time to reflect upon the vanity of his ambition, and no doubt if he could restore the "status quo ante bel lum" he would be abundantly satisfied with the quantity and quality of the "rights" which he then possessed. The "rights" which he then possessed. The great trouble with the professor, who was a very excellent man, was the same that afflicted a good many other people in these parts at that time. They thought they could not live in a Union where slavery was to be recognized as a sectional instead of a national institution, and where it was not to be allowed to spread where it was not to be allowed to spread were smilling countenances, no doubt. al instead of a national institution, and where it was not to be allowed to spread abroad and occupy the virgin domain of the territories of the country. In order to make people quit combatting its political pretensions and questioning its divine authority, it was thought best to engage in a war to coerce the moral sense of the nation into subjection. Men like Professor Pickett could not understand that the anti-slavery sentiment of the country or of the Christian world had any rights which they were bound to reinquer it by constant threats to withdraw from the Union. These threats, often uttered, and used for many years to advance the pro-slavery standard into the very heart of our national politics, they, unhappilly for themselves, at last attempted to put into execution. They supposed that the "abolition States' would yield as a matter of course, for according to their standard of measuring men there was very little manhood outside of the slave States. Therein they made their last grand and fatal mistake, Never were people more wofully deceived. Never were people called upon to answer more grieviously for their presumption and folly. Never were tables more completly turned. After the lapse of fifteen years Brooke county has abundant reason to bless her stars that she did not elect a man of Prof. Pickett's proclivities to the Richmond Convention, and still more that her people did not follow his example in joining their fortunes to the rebellion. Suppose that these Panhandle counties, along with all the border counties of West Virginia, had taken part in the secession movement instead of standing by the Union, what would have been their condition today? Very different from what it is. Not unlike perhaps the border counties of Virginia along the Potomac, literally tramped out. And yet Prof. Pickett was blind enough to call on the people to follow him and "thereby promote their agricultural, mechanical and manufacturing interests," Follow me, said he, and "you will be respected at home and honored abroad." Poor man! he would have been a blind leader of the blind, and we would all have fallen into the ditch together. We discover in the professor's circular the same old talk about "reserved rights" that is still indulged in by Democratic that is still indulged in by Democratic leaders wherever you find them. In 1801 they proposed to resume their "reserved rights" and break up the Union because the people had elected a President upon the platform that slavery ought not to spread into the Territories of the United States. And now in 1875, after the war, we find one of these Democratic leaders in Congress (Senator McDonald) telling us that the people of this country "are some of the term," but that we still are so many "sovereign, free and independent States." This is the sort of talk with which Democratic leaders sought to confuse the patriotic impulses and instincts of the people in 1801, and with which hem at the people in 1801, and with which they still keep alive the dying embers of their heretical creed. The common sense of the people told them in 1801, as it does to-day, that there can be but one sovereignty in the country, and that if the States are indeed sovereign then there is no power to hold them in the Union. The idea of the Federal Government being only the agent of sovereign thaving powers that his principal could leaders wherever you find them. In 1901 States! Who ever heard of an agen having powers that his principal could not exercise? And yet the Constitution of the United States says that no (sover-eign) State of this Union shall coin money, make war, levy duties, or do various other things that always pertain to sovereignty. Why do not the Democratic leaders teach the peovarious other things that always pertain to sovereignty. Why do not the Democratic leaders teach the people at once the absurdity that we have a government within a government instead of telling them that we have sovereign States. The doctrine of the Republican party, in opposition to all such pernicions teaching, is the same as that of the Whig party, and, still further back, of the Federal party, viz: that it was "the people of the United States," (not the States) who "in order to form a more perfect Union" than the former Confederacy, ordained and established the constitution of the United States, It was the people of the whole country (not the States) who enacted that that constitution should forever bind and control every State, and seems to make the power house of the company have been restited and handsomely refurnished.

But we did not mean, on setting out, to make Prof. Pickett's circular the text of Post office. such a long sermon. The faded document before us belongs to the exploded heresies of the past, and must take its place, dent and Rutherford B. Hayes for Vice GRAND MASQUERADE BALL:

A BREWING firm in Philadelphia has contracted with the Centennial Board of Directors for the monopoly of the sale of beer upon the grounds, for which they are to pay $50,000. The capacity of the establishment is 135,000 barrels per annum, and as they calculate to dispose of 300,000 barrels, they are already making contracts in other cities to help them nake up the deficiency.

NEWSPAPER gossip is that Carl Schurz David A. Wells and Colonel Grosvenor are getting possession of the Financier, a weekly money and business paper of New York, and making a good thing of it—changing its name to the Public, and devoting it specially to the currency, tariff, and other administrative reforms. An excellent idea, and very able men to carry it out.

The fire at the Penitentiary on Sunday night came near being a very destructive one, though by the prompt and energetic action of the Bucket Brigade—for this is the only protection the building has from fire—it was extinguished. A hundred dollars will perhaps repair the damage. It is not known how the fire originated, but it is more than likely it had been smouldering for several days, as no fre had been in the room for three days before.

As our County Institute takes place next week, and as we expect a good time, I hereby in behalf of the teachers of Marshall county extend a cordial invitation to the teachers of Wheeling to attend. Prof. G. T. McCord, the instructor for the occasion, has a great reputation as an educator, and I have no doubt it will not only be pleasant but profitable to all who hear him, He lectures on Wednesday night. Subject: "Our Home Speech." On Thursday night the members of the Institute will give an entertainment consisting of select readings, recitations, dialogues, and music, vocal and instrumental. An admittance of 25 cents will be charged at the entertainment to assist in defraying the expenses of the Institute.

The members of the M. E. Church have decided to erect a new building the comping summer. A building committee of nine have been appointed, and the work of devising ways and means for raising the funds will be began at once. The congregation is well able to build a new house, though in these hard times some may have to reach further into their pocket books than will be pleasant.
